What is it like to attend this early years setting?

The provision is outstanding

Children are fully immersed in the vibrant learning environment that sparks their curiosity and engages their interests. From the moment they arrive, they are excited and eager to get stuck into play. For instance, children begin crafting using a range of materials and tools available to them. The large, open outdoor space is where children spend most of their time, exploring activities that enable them to think critically, be physically active and creative. For instance, children work together to dig for treasure. They build on their mathematical skills as they count the gems and compare sizes. Additionally, children develop a love for books and stories, often reading together and creatively re-enacting the stories they have encountered.

Children demonstrate strong independence skills as they handle tasks with ease. For example, they take some responsibilities for the smooth running of the day as they set up for lunch and extend activity ideas. Older children often help younger children learn these skills too. Staff have high expectations for every child, which helps ensure children make the best possible progress. The flexible nature of the curriculum and learning environment allows children to thrive, with enthusiastic staff who are genuinely passionate about making play both enjoyable and educational. Staff naturally extend children's learning through everyday interactions, with each child being greeted by familiar adults they consider their key family.

Children are visibly content, displaying a strong sense of safety and security. They build positive relationships with one another and the atmosphere is both calm and purposeful, creating an ideal space for their growth. This nurturing environment supports children's emotional and social well-being and overall development allowing children to truly thrive.

What does the early years setting do well and what does it need to do better?

■ Leaders are highly inspiring and have crafted an exceptional curriculum that sparks children's eagerness to learn through play. They continually refine the learning environment, to ensure it remains enjoyable and effectively challenges the children's development. The leadership team is committed to providing staff with continuous coaching and mentoring. This investment in staff has a positive impact on the quality of teaching and learning children receive. Staff greatly appreciate the support and encouragement they receive. ■ Staff implement the curriculum seamlessly. They demonstrate a deep understanding of each child's individual needs, including those with special educational needs and/or disabilities. Staff expertly build on the skills children are ready to learn and have a plan for progression. For example, younger children develop good fine-motor skills by threading beads, eventually progressing to more complex tasks like sewing. ■ Staff thoughtfully plan the learning environment which provides ample opportunities for trial and error, allowing children to develop resilience and selfconfidence. Children are supported to be highly self-motivated learners who demonstrate exceptional behaviour. Staff enable children to have plenty of opportunity to explore their creativity, develop physical skills, broaden their vocabulary and engage in hands-on learning. Children confidently assess risks during play, thinking about their own safety and that of others. For instance, they understand how to climb equipment safely and how to carry and lift large objects properly. This sense of responsibility is reinforced by staff, who serve as excellent role models. ■ Staff are exceptional teachers who effortlessly enhance children's learning experiences. They play a key role in nurturing children's remarkable imaginative skills, especially during role-play in the sensory kitchen. The children eagerly spend extended periods taking food and drink orders from their peers, confidently stepping into their roles as servers and chefs. Their enjoyment is clear, and they excitedly invite their familiar adults to join in their play. The children quickly make connections to their home experiences. ■ Leaders and staff's consistent reflections on the learning environment promote an inviting space for exploration. Children thoroughly enjoy mark making, whether they are recording their peers' orders, sketching designs for their construction projects, or mixing colours. These creative moments not only showcase their expanding imagination but also support the development of their fine-motor skills and early literacy. ■ Children participate in forest school sessions and enjoy outings to local forests and cafés. Staff plan these sessions well to enable children to practise making decisions, selecting from menus, and paying for their hot chocolates, all of which are hugely valued real-life learning experiences. Children are well-prepared to take responsibility for their personal hygiene. Staff support children's self care well, as a result children routinely wash and dry their hands without reminders and use tissues independently, demonstrating a high level of self-care. ■ Parents consistently praise the support their children receive at the pre-school and the great progress they have made. They highlight their children's growing vocabulary, increased confidence, and achievements in toilet training. The partnership between the pre-school and parents is strong and collaborative, with open communication benefiting both the children's development and their families.
